NDON AWAITS ALCOCK AND BROWN WITH OPEN ARMS

rmen Who Landed in Irish Bog After Trip Of 16 Hours and 12 Minutes From Newfoundland to Fly to British Capital if Bomber Can be Repaired.

Telegraph to The Freeman.
ondon, June 16.—A welcome eclipsing that given Harry G. ker and Mackenzie Grieve its Captain John Alcock and utenant Arthur W. Brown when reach London, fresh from their ory-making flight across the Atic.

he two trans-Atlantic fliers are ected to arrive here Wednesday. Vickers Airship Company wired ock today that it will immediatesend airship parts to replace those naged when his plane came down an Irish bog near Galway, at the of the 1,900 mile journey. If the bomber was not too badly crash-Alcock and Brown will fly to don, but at the air ministry it said today that it is more likely t they will make the trip by rail, way dispatches indicating that eral days will be required to re the machine.

t was stated today that the new dal of the Royal Air Force which been awarded only to Hawker Grieve and to the American rs who crossed the Atlantic, will be awarded to Alcock and Brown, shortly after their arrival here.

London, June 16.—The final goal of all the ambitions which flying men have held since the Wright brothers first rose from the earth in a heavier than air machine was realized Sunday morning when the young British officer, Captain John Alcock, and his American navigator, Lieutenant Arthur W. Brown, landed on the Irish coast after the first non-stop flight across the Atlantic Ocean.

Their voyage was without accident and without unforeseen incident, so far as can be learned. It was a straightaway, cleancut flight, achieved in 16 hours and 12 minutes from Newfoundland to Clifden, Ireland, a distance of more than 1,900 miles. The landing was made at 9:40 o'clock, British summer time.

But the brief and modest description which comes from the airmen at Clifden tells of an adventurous and amazingly hazardous enterprise. Fog and mist hung over the North Atlantic and the Vickers-Vimy biplane climbed and dived, struggling to extricate herself from the folds of the airplane's worst enemies. She rose to 11,000 feet and swooped down almost to the surface of the sea and at times the two voyagers found themselves flying upsidedown, only ten feet above the water.

Don't Be A Civic "Slacker"

CONFIDENT KINGSTON WILL ONCE MORE MAKE GOOD

That is Spirit With Which Workers Are Going Out for Chamber of Commerce Membership Worthy of City---Statement of President Herbert.

At least 500 members for the Chamber of Commerce. That is the goal which 150 busy men of Kingston are giving of their time and energy to reach before Friday evening.

The first meeting of the team workers comes this evening at 6:30 in the Y. M. C. A. building.

President Joseph M Herbert will preside and instructions and brief snappy talks will be given in preparation for the beginning of team work tomorrow

This meeting will be preceded by a meeting of the captains and followed by a meeting of the special flying squadron composed of President Herbert, W. C. Kingman, C. R. O'Connor, Palmer Canfield, Sr., Palmer Canfield, Jr., C. R. Stull Joseph M. Fowler, Robin Stelle, C. S. Treadwell, W. C. Turck, F. L. Thornberry, Aaron Cohen; W. H. Van Slyke and E. H. Bogart.

"It requires at least 500 members," said President Joseph M. Herbert this morning," to give the Chamber of Commerce the strength which is needed to enable it to work for the things that Kingston needs with the efficiency that the importance of these things demand.

"Mayor Canfield put it very forcibly at the Reed dinner Thursday evening when he said that the Chamber of Commerce has been doing forty cent percapita work for Kingston on twenty cents per capita revenue.

"The work of the Chamber of Commerce is the kind of work that demands adequate revenue and widespread cooperation. It has things to do which are perhaps more difficult than are the problems of any private business. It cannot do them as they need to be done unless it has the means to organize its work in a thoroughly business-like way and has the active support and cooperation of a large number of the people of Kingston.

"We have been going step by step, believing that definite things well done would produce a degree of confidence and approval that would bring the chamber the support which is essential. And there is every indication that this has happened.

"It means a great deal to Kingston to have 140 men pledged to go out on the teams in the drive that begins tomorrow morning. They are not coming back empty-handed. The new members that they will bring in and the increases in the number of plural memberships held by the larger concerns in Kingston should place the work of the Chamber of Commerce on a thoroughly sound basis.

"Kingston has formed the habit of doing things well. The Chamber of Commerce is appealing with confidence for the support which will give it the strength that is possessed by Chambers of Commerce in other cities of about the same size. Poughkeepsie has more than 500 members. I do not think we are going to fall short of equalling that.

"There are very important things to be done. Kingston has possibilities that few cities of its size can equal. Better still, it has the men and women who can do things and do them well.

"The Chamber of Commerce is the agency through which we can all join together in doing the things that need to be done, whether they are civic, industrial or commercial.

"I am sure that Generals Canfield and Turck, with their captains and workers will close the campaign with reports that Kingston has made good once more."

"WETS" IMPRESS THE PRESIDENT

But Wilson Takes Ground He Has No Power To Nullify War-Time Drouth Until Palmer Rules Demobilization Is Complete.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, June 16.—President Wilson is satisfied that a majority of the people in the United States favor the repeal of the wartime prohibition act insofar as it relates to light wines and beer, but maintains the position that he is unable to prevent the law from becoming effective, it was learned from authoritative sources today.

There is only one slight chance that he will act. If Attorney General Palmer rules that the war ends with the signing of the peace treaty and demobilization is completed with the return of the National Army and the National Guard to the United States the president will set aside the wartime prohibition law.

BRIDGE BORINGS BEGAN SATURDAY

ANNUAL RECITAL

Of Hummel Advanced Pupils Tonight—Younger Ones Pleased.

This evening the advanced pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Ford Hummel will give their annual recital at the Elmendorf Street Presbyterian Church. One of the numbers will be a violin solo by David Schoenfeld of Saugerties, who will play a "Ballade," from Dancla. Another number of special interest will be a Haydn string quartet, Op. 1, No. 3, which will be played by Ford Hummel, first violin; Earle Hummel, 2nd violin; Stanley Hummel, viola; and Gordan Burhans, 'cello. It is seldom indeed that Kingston people have the opportunity to hear string quartet music, which has always appealed to the minds and hearts of our greatest composers, as the finest possible medium of musical expression, and this number will be welcomed as a herald of other string quartet works in future.

The recital given by the younger pupils of Mr. and Mrs Hummel at the church on Friday evening was largely attended, and all of the numbers were greatly enjoyed, as all of the young people showed the results of efficient and painstaking instruction and careful practice on their own parts. Considerable talent was shown by the pupils.

The violin students who played on Friday evening were David Handler, Burton Davis, Ernest Lardike, Arthur Chipp, Myron Oppenheimer, Jesse Baker, Kendall Zeh, Millard Sanford, Helen Meyer, Margaret Elmendorf, Stanley Hummel, Helen Wood, Florence Gilbert; and those who played the piano selections were Davis Schryver, Helen Inderal, Annie Mae Rec, Adelaide Henkel, Dorothy Cunnitz, Anna Schoenmaker, Rosalind Ellison, Frances Dederick, Margery Norwood, Clifford Smith, Alice Gillett and Edith Hayes.

U. S. TROOPS OCCUPY JUAREZ AND PURSUE VILLISTA FORCES

NO FRICTION WITH MEXICO

As Result of American Troops In Battle With Villa's Rebels Says Secretary Baker—Purpose Simply to Protect Life on American Side of Border.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 16.—There is no possibility of any mis-understanding between the American and Mexican governments as a result of American troops having crossed the border and engaged in battle with the Villistas, Secretary of War Baker declared early today in a brief formal statement. The only purpose of the American soldiers is to protect American life inside the border, he said.

The secretary's statement follows. "There is no possibility of a misunderstanding between the Republic of Mexico and the United States with regard to the protection of life on the American side. In many cases previously, it had been necessary for the American forces to briefly cross the border to disperse Mexican bandit forces. The sole purpose of these soldiers is to protect life on the American side."

DRAWING EXHIBITS.

Graded School Pupils' Work on View This Week.

During this week there will be very interesting exhibits of drawing done by the pupils of the graded schools of the city, shown in the various rooms in the schools, and parents, friends and the public in general are asked to call at the schools and see what the children have been doing along this line of educational work. These exhibits as stated by Miss White, supervisor of drawing, are not special features of the drawing work done just as show pieces, but are chosen from the regular work of the year as done by the scholars, which makes the exhibits especially interesting. While Miss White feels that all of the schools have done excellent drawing work, it would seem that the exhibits at Schools No. 7 and 8 are particularly fine. It is to be hoped that the parents and friends of the pupils, especially, will find time to visit the exhibits.

SURGICAL MIRACLES

Are Performed in Fox Hills Hospital Says Miss Clearwater.

Miss Helena Clearwater, who is now an Army Nurse at U. S. A. General Hospital, No. 41, Fox Hills, Staten Island, and who has been visiting friends in this city during a ten days' furlough, returned to her hospital duties today. Judging from what Miss Clearwater had to tell of the work among the soldiers at this hospital, our wounded and sick men are receiving the very best possible medical and surgical care. In fact, some of the surgery performed, in order to make whole and presentable the men who risked all for right and country and home, is nothing short of the miraculous, and the extreme miraculous at that.

Already the sale of tickets for the coming performance of the "Parish Priest," which the Daughters of Isabella will give at St. Mary's Hall on Friday evening of this week, following an afternoon matinee for the school children, is remarkably good The public is reminded that those who have not yet purchased their tickets may find them for sale at Burgevin's, O'Reilly's News Store and Sheppard's confectionery store on Broadway. Between the acts there will be special numbers of unusual interest. Solos will be given by Miss Sarah Humphrey, Miss Elizabeth Cussack and Solomon Roeznay and his sister, Miss Sophia Roeznay.

3,600 Yanks Cross Border as Rebel Leader Besieges Town and Kills Americans---Bombard Race Track in Cooperation With Negro Infantry and Cavalry---Not an Invasion.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., June 16.—United States troops today are in possession of Juarez and are scouring the country south and east of the town, capturing or killing every Villista soldier they can find. The Americans have orders to shot instantly any rebel who refuses to surrender.

It became known here today that the action of General James B. Erwin in ordering American troops was not the result of hasty impulse but that orders to General Erwin were issued in Washington June 12, directing him to use his discretion. The crossing was carefully planned in advance and the order given when General Erwin deemed the crossing necessary.

El Paso, Tex June 16.—American troops were engaged in battle with Mexican forces early today for the first time since the occupation of Vera Cruz.

Thirty-six hundred American soldiers crossed the border shortly before midnight and engaged the forces of General Villa. They immediately attacked and attempted to capture or disperse the whole Villista army.

Cavalry, infantry and artillery participated in the action, the cavalry charging the Mexican rebel ranks and at the same time attempting an encircling movement. The first casualties of the American troops were one artilleryman killed and another seriously wounded by snipers.

The 3,600 American cavalry and infantry were supported by field guns which opened fire with shrapnel on the forces of General Villa, attacking Juarez Early today it was impossible to learn whether Villa would continue his attempt to capture Juarez or would withdraw

The American crossing—officially specified as "not an invasion"—was made after a woman had been killed and five others injured from shots from Villista guns which whizzed across the border into ElPaso.

The American force consists of the Fourth battalion of the Twenty-fourth (negro) infantry, commanded by Colonel Haddel, and the Fifth and Seventh cavalry regiments, under Colonel S. R. Tompkins. A battalion of the Eighty-second artillery also is participating in the action.

Less than ten minutes after the order to cross had been given by General James B Erwin, the entire 3,500 American soldiers were on Mexican soil.

The first action of the artillery occurred at 12:30 o'clock this morning, when an army field piece hurled a charge of shrapnel over Juarez toward the race track, where Villistas were concentrated. The second shot five minutes later struck near the race track. These shots were followed at five minute intervals by shots from two guns placed on the Mexican side near the international bridge.

Soon shrapnel shells were bursting in and around the race track grand stand at the rate of three a minute. After getting the range the artillerymen, commanded by Colonel Merrill, scored a hit with every shot

Meantime the cavalry brigade advanced as close to the race track as Colonel Tompkins would permit, while keeping out of range of the American shrapnel.

An enveloping movement was started immediately with the view to preventing the Villista army from escaping southeast to the mountains, or crossing the border to endanger American citizens.

Early reports to American military headquarters gave no estimate of the number of Villistas captured by the American cavalry but it was expected that many would be brought back and interned at Fort Bliss

Colonel James C Hornbrook, commander of the Fifth Cavalry, is in command of the extreme left wing of the American forces In conjunction with the other cavalry it was expected to completely envelop Villa's positions The cavalry, artillery and infantry are supported by the Ninth engineers, two armored motor cars and other detachments

General James B Erwin, in explaining the movement, asserted the part the American troops are playing is thoroughly understood by General Gonzales and officials of the Carranza regime and that no resistance is anticipated from the Carranza forces and "no strong resistance" from the Villistas.

Villa forces which first attacked Juarez were driven from the city early Sunday, but renewed the attack yesterday afternoon. Federal cavalry charged the rebels and again repulsed them. Colonel Gonzales Escobar, commanding the federal forces, being severely wounded in the engagement

Federals claim 150 Villistas had been killed, fifty captured and ten wounded in the fighting up to midnight last night. Shortage of ammunition is believed to have been a factor in causing the Villistas to withdraw after they had entered the city.

Additional United States troops have been ordered to El Paso from Douglas, Arizona, to reinforce the forces now patrolling the border

One of the chief questions being discussed by Texans and Americans conversant with the situation is the outcome of the present movement into Mexico. They are speculating on the probability of this action becoming a real intervention and marking the beginning of a decisive policy toward Mexico.

The correspondent of the International News Service crossed into Juarez Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. After visiting the battle zones of the previous night and inspecting Cruz Blanca, or White Cross, Hospital, which was caring for 12 wounded rebel and federal prisoners, he returned to the center of the city where three Americans in business at Juarez were gathered. Word was received that the rebels intended to attack at 4 o'clock and a few minutes after this hour firing began in the eastern part of the city. The Americans took refuge in the Annex Cantinau

About 5 o'clock the rebels drove the federals to a point directly opposite the American refugees where the Carranzistas made a stand. It was here that Colonel Escobar, in charge of the Carranzists, received five wounds

The bodies of the slain were still lying on the ground.

In the trenches from that time until 11 o'clock firing occurred throughout the night The streets were absolutely deserted except for an occasional cavalryman or infantryman riding toward Fort Hidalgo.

Juarez seemed a city of the dead as the night shades drew over the shuttered and deserted streets. The dead lay in distorted attitudes about the curbing, an occasional Mexican cur sniffing at them. Civilization and the United States seemed far away instead of a scant mile.

At 11 o'clock word was received from El Paso that the American troops were preparing to come over and quell the disturbance. As there was no disturbance in Juarez at that time, the firing having almost ceased, little credence was placed in this report.

The correspondent sat upon a platform, raised about twenty feet from the ground at the side of the cantina, watching for anything when a bare two blocks away where Avenida Laredo turns in to Calle Comercio, came the sound of a muffled engine. A dark shape crawled around the corner, followed by another and another.

Then in the dead stillness the machines passed into a patch of moonlight and disclosed themselves to be three United States military engineers. Close behind them passed a mass of men which proved to be negro soldiers of the 24th United States infantry

As the infantry passed in front of the cantina, three Mexican rebels stepped out. In a minute they were under arrest and on their way to the boundary line

A few minutes later the artillery began to bombard the race track to the east of the town.

COUNCIL ENDS TREATY LABORS

As Far As Germany Is Concerned —She Gets Allies' Last Word This Afternoon To Sign or Reject By Saturday Noon—Allied Unity Emphasized.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, June 16.—Final approval of the allied reply to the German counter proposals was given by the council of five today. The entire document was read by the council as soon as it came from the hands of the various experts who combined in its production. The experts finished the document at 3:30 this morning. As soon as the seal of approval was set on the German reply, the council turned its attention to Austrian matters.

The small powers made an eleventh hour request that they be allowed to see the allied reply to Germany before it was handed to the German delegates.

Their request has not been formally acted upon, but it is understood they will be told there is not sufficient time. As a compromise those small powers most vitally interested will be shown the reply before it is delivered.

The complete substituted treaty was to be handed to the Germans this afternoon, with a time limit expiring Saturday noon. Germany will not be allowed to debate orally or discuss the terms in any way; she must sign or reject.

The solidarity of the allied and associated powers was emphasized in all official statements today. President Wilson, Lloyd-George and Clemenceau realized the danger of allowing the Germans to even consider the possibility of threatened dissension in the allied ranks. It was therefore made plain that they would allow no efforts to nullify their work through a series of counter-notes.

For example, it was stated today, that should the Germans let it be known that the present government cannot sign the treaty, but that a new government would be formed, the allies will reply that the change must be made and the treaty signed within the specified limit. Neither will they be allowed to trifle by suggesting acceptance of the main points while demanding changes on minor points.

President Wilson will proceed to Brussels Wednesday night, spending Thursday and Friday there and returning to Paris Saturday morning to participate in the signing of the treaty if the Germans are then ready. The president hopes to reach the United States before the end of the month, being somewhat concerned over reports of industrial unrest at home.

FIELDS PROVIDED FOR MOTORTRUCK ROUTES

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

Regions devoted to truck farming or dairying provide rich fields for motortruck operation. However, consideration should be given to the nature of the products to be hauled, as low-priced, bulky staples may not stand the transportation charges necessary to maintain a route. For illustration, it is unlikely that hay can be transported by motortruck for long distances except under unusual conditions with respect to price. Perishables may stand the motortruck tariff if the transportation service to market is speedier than the customary means of transportation. Such commodities as cream, milk and eggs which are high in price as compared to bulk, may bear a reasonably high transportation charge if more satisfactory facilities are offered

Seek Profitable Load.

The back haul or return trip, which often is made without a load, constitutes an extravagant practice which truckmen should strive to avoid. Attention should be concentrated on the problem of arranging for freight so that there will be a profitable load on all trucks whenever they are operated.

Keen competition is another factor in motortruck service. Some operators have found it possible to compete successfully with rail service and yet to charge rates rather higher than were charged by the customary carriers. Such conditions, however, are only possible where the service is developed on a most extensive scale. Freight and express schedules in some districts have been unsatisfactory to shippers recently, and by offering a more prompt and speedy service truck owners have developed a very satisfactory business that ordinarily would be handled by rail.

Good Roads Essential.

Good roads are a prerequisite to successful motortruck operation Very few operators appreciate the increased expense which results from travel over poor roads. The unfortunate operator who tries to maintain his services over highways which are virtually impassable and unsatisfactory has found that his daily operation costs far exceed the average normal expenses and seriously affect his profits.

GIVE ATTENTION TO AUTO LIGHTS

Owners Overlook Essential Part by Thinking Wiring Too Complicated to Master.

LEARN TO READ HYDROMETER

Prevent Short Circuits by Watching Insulation and Patching Worn Places With Tape—Carry Duplicate Set of Bulbs.

Most car owners believe the lighting system on a car is too complicated to be mastered. But it is not at all difficult to learn how to take care of it. The battery the lights, the ammeter the fuses and the wires can readily be understood and should be inspected occasionally. Every motorist should know how to read a hydrometer and test the battery The celluloid hydrometer is better than the one made of glass, because it is not so easily broken.

A reading of from 1275 to 1300 indicates that the battery is in good condition and is being properly charged by the generator. If the reading is down to 1200 it indicates that the lights or the the starter are being used too much

Keep the battery terminals tight and cover them with cup grease to prevent corrosion by the battery acid. Short circuits can be prevented by watching the wire insulation and covering worn places with tape.

Watch Ammeter Closely.

The ammeter should be watched closely, for it indicates whether the battery is charging when the engine is running The very best type of ammeter is that which shows the rate at which the charging or discharging takes place.

When the car is running at normal speed—say 20 miles an hour—with all lights on, the ammeter should show charge. If it does not, the battery will soon be discharged. Always see that the ammeter doesn't register discharge when the lights and ignition are turned off. This would be caused by a short circuit between the ammeter and the switch.

Occasionally an ammeter needle becomes bent, giving an incorrect reading. This may be determined by shutting off the lights and disconnecting the wire from the ammeter to the switch. If any variation is noted it must be allowed for when making a reading.

Arrangement of Lamps.

It is always a good plan to carry a duplicate set of lamp bulbs for the car. Note the voltage of the tail light and the instrument light. If these are marked 3V instead of 6V it means that they are wired in series—that is, the current must pass through one and then through the other before it grounds. This is done to notify you whether the tail light is burning. If one of these lights goes out the other also goes out. These lamps must not be put in sockets marked for 6V lamps, such as the side lights, as they would burn out in a few seconds. On the other hand, a 6V lamp would not be harmed but it would give very little light.

Always keep an extra supply of fuses on hand Learn the location of the fuse for each set of lamps. This is easily determined by turning on all the lights and pulling out the fuses one at a time When a fuse burns out, find the short circuit before replacing it, otherwise you will burn out fuses just as fast as you put them in.

ANNOYANCES OF DOOR STRAP

Trouble May Be Prevented by Fastening Small Coil Spring to the Center of Strap.

The straps that are installed on the doors of cars to keep the former from opening too far often cause annoyance by getting in the crack of the door when it is being closed By fastening a small coil spring to the center of the strap, the other end of the spring being attached where the strap is fastened to the body this trouble will be obviated.

The tank of the vacuum fuel feed system should be cleaned out at least once in three months. The operation is not hard to carry out. FIREMEN TO MEET IN SAUGERTIES

The annual convention of the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association opens in Saugerties on Tuesday. That day will be devoted to the business of the association. Wednesday morning there will be the election of new officers, and that afternoon the big firemen's parade, always a feature of the convention, will take place. For some reason not known Kingston will not be represented in the parade by any of the local fire companies. Kingston has probably the largest number of members in the association with 180 membership. It is expected that a majority will attend as there is a hot fight for next year's convention. Kingston wants it and so does Poughkeepsie.

ESOPUS.

Esopus, June 16.—Mrs. Elmer Lund received a letter from her sister, Miss Isabelle Davis, a few days ago written from France and stating that she expected to sail for home soon. The letter was dated May 28. A letter bearing the same date was received from Private John A. Anderson by a friend in this village and he also expects to reach home in a short time. At the time the letter was written he was at Brest awaiting sailing orders.

On Wednesday last Mr. and Mrs. John H. Beaver with their sons, John, Jr., and Paul motored to Kingston to attend the industrial exhibition at the high school in which the youngest son, Ralph, is a student. The family were all pleased with what they say and are of the opinion that the industrial department of the school is a very important one to the students.

Perfect weather, a good sized company, plenty of ice cream, strawberries and take, together with a ready sale for every bit of the things provided, combined to make the festival held on the Methodist Church lawn last Friday evening a decided success. The sum of $22.10 was cleared. Many came in automobiles and included Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ganoung and daughter, Vivian, and several friends, all of Poughkeepsie. Also Mrs. Sidney Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Van Buren and Mr. Van Buren's mother of Kingston. Thanks are due to all who in any way contributed to the success of the affair.

Javanese Fond of Theater.

Java is an island dimly reminiscent to the occidental mind of coffee and of brown, scantily-clad natives. These are memories of the Java of our school books. The books rarely get far enough away from the business at hand to elaborate on the theaters of Java, which, the natives can tell you, are far more interesting than coffee plantations. The Javanese so enjoy the wandering theaters of their land that they will walk miles to see one of their epics or folk tales produced either by puppets or by real players. Wherever the manager sets up his stage properties, there is the jabbering Javanese crowd, eager for evening and the prospective treat.

RANTZAU GETS ALLIES' REPLY

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 16.—The feature of the stock market at the opening today was the pressure against Steel Common which could only be attributed to a disposition to sell that stock to strengthen other holdings. It opened down ¼ to 105, but rallied ½. Other steel industrials moved within a narrow range. Bethlehem Steel B sold at 87½ ex-dividend of 2 per cent, a net gain of ⅝ but later reacted to $7. Royal Dutch New York advanced ⅞ to 109½ but soon lost this gain. Studebaker rose ⅜ to 99⅞ followed by a decline to 98¾. Marine Common advanced ¼ to 49¾ from which it reacted to 49¼. The preferred yielded from 116½ to 115⅝ and Crucible declined to 89½.

The tone was heavy during the forenoon, losses ranging from 1 to 3 points. American Smelting was badly influenced, falling nearly two points. Steel Common declined ½ to 104¾, from which it rallied to 105½. General Motors fell five points and Studebaker 2½ to 107¼. Marine Common fell one point to 48½ and the preferred one point to 115½. Fractional losses were sustained in the railway and copper issues. Sinclair fell over two points to 56¼ and then rallied to 58¼.

During the afternoon the market was ruled entirely by the money situation. When the National City Bank sent $5,000,000 to be loaned at six per cent in mid-afternoon, there was some sharp improvement in prices, but when the money rates again moved up to 12 and 17 per cent there was a fair selling movement on which many issues broke to the lowest point of the day. Studebaker sold down to 94 and Steel common to 103⅝. Similar losses were sustained in nearly all the speculative issues.

The market closed unsettled; government bonds unchanged, railway and other bonds steady.

Iris and Orange Water.

Did you ever try an iris water bath, or hear of such a thing? They are quite regular occurrences in Japan at certain times of the year, both in the homes of people and in their public bathhouses. Iris water bath day occurs May 5. When the iris is placed in warm water it gives off a volatile oil which has a pleasant odor, so it is said. On this one day of the year these baths are furnished to all frequenters of the public bathhouses and are popular. During the winter season the inhabitants of the flowery kingdom enjoy another famous bathing day. Orange-flower water is then used and enjoyed.

Norsemen's Visit to Archangel.

To an English king, Alfred the Great, we owe the best description of the earliest visits paid to Archangel by the Norsemen. In 1553 an English traveler, Chancellor, laid the foundations of its commercial prosperity, and British crews, ever since Chancellor's day, have called at Archangel from May till October, when the port is icefree, for the timber, flax, linseed, oats and skins which the place exports. Daylight there is reduced in midwinter to the miserable ration of three hours.

NOT TO REMOVE SIBERIAN FORCE

General March Proposes To Replace 8,000 Yank Soldiers Now There With Recruits—Exceeded In Number By Japs Only.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 16.—"The administration has no intention now of withdrawing all American troops from Siberia," General March, chief of staff, told the senate military affairs committee this afternoon.

There are now 8,000 American troops in Siberia, General March said, and it is proposed to replace the men with others now being recruited.

The American forces in Siberia are larger than the British, French or Italian forces. General March said in response to questions, adding that under the original plan the United States force was the smallest.

"The Japan force is larger than all the rest put together," he added.

The Name of Republic.

The name of Republic is inscribed upon the most imperishable monuments, and it is probable that it will continue to be associated, as it has been in the past ages, with whatever is heroic in character, sublime in genius, and elegant and brilliant in the cultivation of arts and letters. What land has ever been visited with the influence of Liberty that did not flourish like the spring? What people has ever worshiped at her altars without kindling with a loftier spirit and putting forth more noble energies? Where has she ever acted that her deeds have not been heroic? Where has she ever spoken that her eloquence has not been triumphant and sublime? Is it nothing, then, to be free? How many nations in the whole annals of human kind have proved themselves worthy of being so?—Hugh Legare.

Meaning of Ailoa.

Ailoa, an industrial town on the upper reaches of the Forth, Scotland, is said to have received its name in a quaint and original fashion. The story goes that at the first meeting of the town council, after some fruitless endeavors at choosing a name, it was decided that it should be taken from the first words uttered by any one of the members present. An embarrassed silence followed and continued for some considerable time, until, at last, one fidgety councilor felt that he could stand it no longer, and left his chair with the remark, "I'll awa'." So from his pronunciation the town was christened Ailoa, which is not only melodious but appropriate, for, on good authority, the meaning of Ailoa is "The way to the sea."

Keep Doing Your Work.

"No, I wasn't discouraged. Twouldn't have been any use; I had to keep right on, anyway," simply answered a plain, practical girl to an inquiry as to the way she had won through a hard time in her life. "When you just have to do things, you don't stop to think whether you have courage to do them or not, you go ahead because there is nothing else to do. I suppose the folks that get discouraged are the ones who have a chance to stop and study themselves to see how they are feeling. When something has to be done, and you have to do it, you're not watching your courage, you are watching your chance."—Pennsylvania Grit.

RENT PROBLEM SOLVED IN ASIA

"Cone Dwellers" Had No Fear of the Landlord.

FIRST APARTMENT HOUSES

Homes of the Troglodytes in Cappadocian Valley in Asia Minor Were Shaped by Eroding Action of Flowing Water Some 2,000 Years Before Christ—Each Succeeding Generation Has Helped Make Dwellings More Habitable.

Refutation of the common belief that apartment houses are a development of modern methods in building and that the idea of housing 30 to 50 families under one roof was thought of first in the nineteenth century, is contained in an article on "The Cone Dwellers of Asia Minor," published in the National Geographic Magazine. The late Dr. J. R. Sillington Starrett, traveler and explorer, the author of the article, presents a history of his inspection of the land of the Troglodytes whose homes in the Cappadocian valley were shaped by the eroding action of flowing water some 2,000 years before Christ, and stand today, "walk-ups" it is true, but nevertheless nature's own apartment houses.

The habitations are cone-shaped. Pumice stone is the material of which they are made, and to protect them from the action of rain nature provided them with roofs of lava that was belched from nearby volcanoes. Compared to those of more modern civilization, the homes of the cone-dwellers lack much that makes for comfort. Needless to state, they are not provided with lighting systems, running water, elevators, superintendents, dumb-waiters and hallboys. But in their favor is the fact that no rent need be paid nor leases signed; no neighbors' children can disturb one because the floors are of thick stone, and burglars find business unprofitable because once the Troglodytes family turns in for the night, the "stairs" is pulled up after them.

Improve Their Homes.

The present generation of Troglodytes has improved on the dwellings left them by their ancestors. In fact each succeeding generation has done its bit to make the stone houses more habitable. For instance, Doctor Starrett explains that in some locations, where the simple crude were the original dwellings, the Troglodytes have improved the situation by building facades of pumice stone in front of them.

Apparently the cones already were standing when the forefathers of the present Troglodytes entered the Cappadocian valley. They were solid, however, and considerable work was necessary to make apartment houses of them.

Primitive tools were used to cut entrances and once the first hole was made, the workers spread themselves, so to speak, and proceeded to enlarge the space inside. The entrance tunnels branched off into rooms; windows were then cut, and the Troglodytes moved in. Everything portable that was owned by the Troglodyte was carried into his apartment and stored away in the store room.

The mere fact that a cone already was inhabited, made no difference to a Troglodyte who liked its appearance. If he found a friend living inside, he burrowed a home under or over that friend's home. In many instances, Doctor Starrett wrote, cones were found to be or to have been used by four or five families. The entrances were found level with the ground in many cases, while on the other hand there were cone dwellings the entrances to which were located far above the surface.

Evidently the Troglodyte of ancient times was a long-fingered, strong toed individual. Small clefts in the surface of the cones' side were used in climbing to and from the apartments. Many of the Troglodytes of today, the article explains, use a pole in entering or leaving the house.

Use Pole for Stairway.

And the modern Troglodyte, using a long wooden pole as a means of entering his home, shows little progress in architecture. None of his ancestors were brought up to the fresh-air habit. Their sleeping rooms for the most part were not constructed so that air might circulate. Examination of the interior rooms indicates that the Troglodytes of the pre-Christian era were content to live in almost total darkness.

So today their descendants pay little attention to light and air. Fresh air and sunlight find their way into just one room. That is located at the entrance. The other rooms are always in inky blackness, unless the occupants of the house lets the wind and rain exert their forces on his walls. Thus a window may force its presence upon them.

Bed Posts in Fence.

A Shawnee County, Kansas, farmer, William T. Steck, has more than two miles of fence, of which the posts are all iron bed posts bought from Topeka junk dealers. He paid from 5 to 7½ cents apiece for them and estimates he has a permanent fence at a saving of $200. Steck does a good deal of junk yard shopping. He has an automobile trailer made from an old spring wagon, salvaged automobile wheels and home-made axles, hubs and spindles.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 16, 1919.

The action of Governor Smith in calling a special session of the legislature to vote on the suffrage amendment savors somewhat of a desire on the part of the executive to be ready should Tammany decide to nominate him as a candidate for the United States Senate The necessity for summoning the legislature at this time can be ascribed to no other reason than an attempt of the Governor to play a little personal politics. Fortunately the people have average intelligence and can see through moves of this nature.

The history of extra sessions does not point to any particular advantage that ever fell to the Governor who called them It may be recalled that William Sulzer called a special session and it was not long thereafter before Martin H. Glynn was elevated from the office of Lieutenant Governor to that of Governor Furthermore, it is difficult to define the necessity of extra sessions in states where the legislature meets annually.

On Derby day the British royal family drove from the station to Epsom Downs in a horse-drawn carriage, and it is announced that it will be "good form" for the "correct" followers of fashion this summer to be seen in horse-drawn carriages in both England and France. Whether this is with a view to encourage horse breeding or merely because automobiles have become too common is not stated.

THE BEST SELLER.

The discovery of a copy of The National Era of June 5, 1851, containing the first chapters of a famous story of other days, prompts the Cleveland Plaindealer to ask: "Who reads 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' now?" After the publication of this almost forgotten story in book form in 1852 not less than three million copies were sold and translations have been printed in nineteen languages "In a casually long period of careful inquiry," comments the Philadelphia Record, "we have never yet come upon one of these three million copies, nor have we found many persons who admit having read the book, though many have seen the play." If the Record's editor will pursue his inquiry as far as the shelves of a large library of his own or any other considerable American city, doubtless he will find a copy of the book still in existence though probably seldom called for.

But he will read it with more or less disappointment owing to the antiquated style and a certain artificiality of atmosphere. An intelligent resident of the south will promptly perceive that the local color is factitious and unreal and that the negro characters are idealized white people with black skins, showing that the author wrote of conditions in the slave states from hearsay. Nevertheless the book draws strength from its earnestness and its aim: and as a denunciation of trading in human flesh it is a work of unquestionable power. Though practically nobody reads it now, its influence and its great sale during a stormy period in American history can be readily understood.

TOO SOON TO FORGET.

It is true enough that the people of a nation at war are ready to believe anything to the discredit of the enemy as well as anything whatsoever tending to glorify their own cause and their own fighters. The unimpassioned historian of a later time always finds a large task of correction set before him. But now, with the war not yet officially over and with the friends of Germany working like beavers to show that the peace terms imposed on a misrepresented people are too severe, it is too soon to begun this work of correction. We read of several American correspondents with the army that are making it their business to run down and destroy "imaginative stories" connected with the achievements of American arms, and of one American correspondent "who undertakes to correct stories about the Germans" on the ground that "German atrocity stories were magnified by the time they were published in the states."

They had better remember that peace is not yet restored and the situation is still critical. There are baseless yarns of course, but to inject belief in one particular is to create doubt in others, and it is too soon to forget the German policy of savage "frightfulness," with its carrying of civilians into distant slavery and hundreds of other certainly known atrocities—all a part of a deliberate scheme of terrorism. It will be time to begin to forget when the aims of civilization's war on Germany have been achieved and real peace reigns.

After all there was no cause for excitement, let alone anxiety. The only difference between the full text of the peace treaty and the expert summary given out is the detail in 80,000 words that could not be put into 8,000. This is now admitted by even the most wrought up of newspaper editors as well as by ex-Secretary Elihu Rooot, the latter telling the Senate that there is "nothing material" in the full text that did not appear in the summary. So, after all, there was no dark conspiracy to deceive the American people by keeping back matters of vital importance. It appears, in fact, that there was no desire to keep anything secret and only a spirit of caution dictating the withholding of the full text until all possible changes had been made and the treaty had been signed. Mr. Root himself told the Senate that when it appeared that there might be changes in the treaty "it was quite wise to say, 'don't distribute this now.'" But after the Germans published the treaty of course this common-sense policy was rendered ineffective

MUNICIPAL BAND.

Prof. Muller's Musicians Pleased at Kingston Point Sunday.

The Municipal Band, George H. Muller, director, formerly known as the Colonial City Band, will begin its regular season at Kingston Point Park and also play at Forsyth Park and McVey's Park, beginning July 1st, and continue weekly until after Labor Day. The band was never better than it is today and the members deserve credit for doing what no other band did along the Hudson river valley, which was to lead every contingent of enlisted men to the West Shore trains during the duration of the war, playing for nothing. The concert at Kingston Point Park, Sunday evening, was greatly enjoyed, the program, which not only contained four community chorus numbers played by request, and in which members of the chorus present joined in and sang, but such classical selections as the "Inflammatus," from Stabat Mater, and the overture to Raymond, which were most artistically rendered.

Curious Plant.

Among the curiosities of the desert of Sahara is a queer-looking scrubby plant, always yellow with fine sand, called the "coughing bean." In the long dry heat its pores become choked and it would die were it not for a powerful gas which accumulates inside and explodes with a sound like a human cough.

Hurry Gets Nowhere.

The man or woman who works in a hurry, always at high tension, with no knowledge of the value of relaxation, produces results far inferior to the quiet, composed worker, who knows how to conserve his strength. He can do more, do it better and at less cost of strength and energy than the hurried associate.

Apt Simile.

The principal speaker at a political meeting had a [illegible] orator who loved the light of publicity. Grasping the speaker by the arm on the conclusion of his long address, the chairman said: "Your speech was like a glass of good champagne" here the chairman smiled pleasantly, "full of froth and very dry."

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Service at St. James's Church—11 Infants Baptized.

The Children's Day service at St. James's Methodist Church was a pronounced success in every way, and the various committees are to be congratulated.

In the first place, the church was never more elaborately, or more beautifully decorated, abundance of laurel being used, as well as daisies and other flowers. Over where the pulpit stands there was a huge canopy trimmed in white, and decorated with smilax and pink flowers, while on the rim was the dove of peace, with out-spread wings. But lovelier than the flowers were the little folks, for the primary department filled the large platform. The features were the graduating of the tots from the Cradle Roll to the primary; the exercises of the younger scholars; a men's chorus, which was highly appreciated; a song and recitation concerning "Our Flag," and also the "Pageant of Peace," which was composed by the pastor. This represented the demands of the nations for peace, and was so pleasing that it was requested by Masons present that it be repeated at the evening service. The baptism of eleven infants was most significant. Of the large audience present all were unanimous in praise of the service, saying that St. James had more than kept up its reputation this year.

The songs rendered by large school led by organ, piano and orchestra were particularly fine.

Sunday afternoon the third degree was conferred on a class of more than one hundred candidates at the Knights of Columbus Home on Broadway. The candidates were mostly from Kingston, although there were a number from the county, the largest delegation of candidates being from Phoenicia. The degree was exemplified by D. D. Frank Jones of New York city, and Past District Deputy Richard Walsh, with a team of twelve men. A delegation of twenty Knights from New York accompanied D. D. Jones to Kingston. The officers and degree team arrived in Kingston at noon and were met at the station by Past D. D. John E. Mahar, G. K. E. F. Flanagan, Trustee William O'Reilly and other members of Kingston Council, and motored to the Stuyvesant Hotel where dinner was served. In recognition of Flag Day there was patriotic exercises also held, and the flag was used in artisically draping the rooms while each candidate wore in his coat lapel a small American flag. Prior to the conferring of the degree on the candidates, Grand Knight E. Frank Flanagan was presented with a handsome third and fourth degree gold watch and fob by members of the council affiliated with the three railroads that enter Kingston, the U. & D., the Wallkill Valley and the West Shore. The presentation address was made by William H. Grogan, who spoke for the railroad men, and Mr. Flanagan gracefully responded. Under the administration of Grand Knight Flanagan the membership is rapidly growing and the local council now numbers almost 800 members, and it is expected the council will have a membership of 1,000 by the close of the year.

Sheep Bone Toy of Small Orientals.

Without the bone of a sheep, that eternal, ubiquitous plaything of all the East, the children of Asia would be absolutely without an amusement device. Go wherever children play—Cossacks or Kurds, Armenians or Arabs, Druses or Greeks—and you will see the sheep bone represents everything from a doll to a sword, from a pasha's horsetail ornamented standard to a British gunboat, from a mosque to a church.—Red Cross Magazine.

Mercenary Love.

Two little cousins had quarreled, and the mother of one of them tried to make peace. "Amy," she said, "why did you tell Bobbie you wouldn't be his little sweetheart?" "Cos he didn't ask me," replied Amy indignantly, "till he knowed I had a new dime!"

Gifts for the June Bride

Useful and Decidedly Acceptable!

¶ Gifts! Gifts! And Still More Gifts! That's what this June means for brides-elect. But a friend does not wish to have the gift to the bride the duplicate of another's offering, for half the satisfaction of giving lies in knowing that the remembrance is exclusive, different and distinctive. Therefore this store has exercised great care in choosing its stock—there's not an unworthy suggestion in the whole collection.

CHICKEN THIEF TO ALBANY PEN

"Skipper" Will Not Bother With Chickens For Awhile at Least—Frank Kuhoupt Had $5 From His "Ma" and Bought Firecracker.

Charles Johnston, 55 years, a negro better known as "Skipper" has a fondness for chickens. His taste does not run to the musical comedy variety, but to those you cook in the pot Sunday morning about 1 o'clock he was caught attempting to help himself at the Kiersted farm by Edward Cunningham, who placed "Skipper" under arrest and turned him over to Officer Shader. This morning Skipper was sent to the pen at Albany for six months

At midnight this morning Officer Ray Saehloff found Frank Kuhoupt, 12 years old, of Hunter street, loitering around Broadway, near the American cigar factory, and escorted him to police headquarters Frank was bare-footed, but happy until nabbed by an officer He had secured $5 from his mother and had blown half of it in for firecrackers which he enjoyed exploding Sunday afternoon

This morning his parents were in police court and after being closeted with Judge Schirick and Chief of Police J Allan Wood for some time talking over the matter it was decided that the boy would be placed with his uncle at Highland to live

FOR KINGSTON
YOUR PART IN KINGSTON'S FUTURE

In service to the Nation we did not count the return in direct benefit to us as the chief thing.

And in service to Kingston we do not think first of what benefit will come directly to us.

The chief point is to do our part for the city which is ours. We will receive benefits of great importance to us.

There is no business, no industry, no profession, occupation or interest of any kind the welfare of which is not inseparably bound up with the welfare of the city.

We Are All Vitally Affected by the Prosperity, the Civic Development and the Alertness of the City

TAKE PRIDE IN UMBRELLAS

Indo-Chinese Workers in France Never Fail to Carry Them on Sundays, Rain or Shine.

Riding along through France on a Sunday in these times, one is reasonably certain to meet many Chinamen under umbrellas.

They mostly hail from Indo-China. The French imported them by thousands for service in the labor battalions behind the lines. During the week, dressed in nondescript mixtures of native garb and cast-off uniforms, they work at road mending or at ditch digging or at truck loading jobs.

On Sundays they dress themselves up in their best clothes and stroll about the countryside. And, rain or shine, each one brings along with him his treasured umbrella and carries it unfurled above his proud head. It never is a Chinese umbrella, either, but invariably a cheap black affair of local manufacture.

Go into one of the barracks where these yellow men are housed, and at the head of each bunk there hangs a black umbrella, which the owner guards as his most darling possession. If he dies I suppose it is buried with him.

Nobody knows why every Sunday the Chinaman sports an umbrella, unless it be that in his Oriental mind he has secured it out that possession of such a thing always him as a person of travel and culture, who, if he may term cosmopolitan, is desirous of conforming to the custom of the country to which he has been transported. A Frenchman, if careless, may leave his umbrella behind when he goes forth for a promenade; a Chinaman never does.—Irvin S. Cobb in Saturday Evening Post.

HOW WOMEN HAVE ADVANCED

Interesting Now to Recall Their Status in Great Britain Less Than a Century Ago.

Should women be whipped?

Just a century ago wiseacres, politicians and noble lords of Great Britain were debating the point. It was quite a new idea to worry about what was happening to women, but after some discussion it was decided that they ought not to be whipped—that the best way to handle them was on the "gentle-but-firm" method—and in 1820 the wiseacres, politicians and noble lords passed a bill known as the whipping act, prohibiting the corporal punishment of women.

Having made this exertion on women's behalf they returned to the discussion of things which interested them.

Fifty years passed. The seed which had been planted in 1820 began to take root in 1870, and the question of special legislation for women again bobbed up. This time an act was passed allowing women to be possessors of their own property—a magnanimous document known as the married women's property act.

These two acts, small in themselves, were of great portent to women. They were the first admission that women had any rights or legal status.

In the last fifty years women have come to the foreground in leaps and bounds. By the interpretation act of 1889 the government went so far as to allow that "words in any act of parliament passed after 1850 imputing the masculine gender shall include females unless the contrary intention appears."—London Mail.

Open Avowal.

There is one family in Washington that has a Germanic name. There are many more families with cognomens smacking of Teutonic extraction, of course.

This particular family has a very little boy in it, who, in playing with the other boys of the neighborhood, has been gibed more or less on account of his name. The battles are small affairs, of course, since the participants are very small.

Perhaps the young man saw the futility of war. Perhaps he is a philosopher. Anyway, his latest reply speaks of genius.

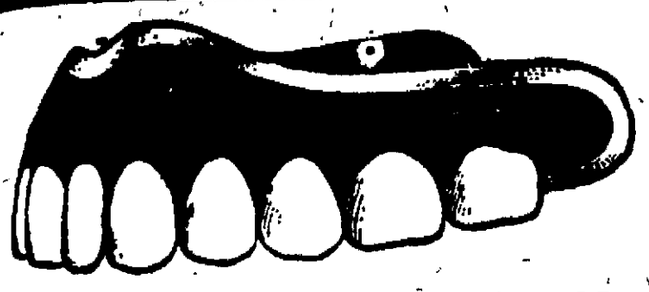
"You're a German! You're a German!" a playmate yelled at him.

The four-year-old grinned peacefully and drawled:

"I'm a German spy, I am."

The Harpsichord.

This was the instrument out of which our modern piano grew. It was more like a grand than an upright piano and sometimes had two rows of keys, but it was very inferior in power and tone to the modern instrument. It had no pedals, and the wires were not struck by hammers, but were plucked by quills. The compass of the instrument was about four octaves which was gradually increased as it was improved upon.



"DIRECT BITE TEETH"

After years of experimenting our laboratories have discovered a direct bite set of artificial teeth. These plates improve the sense of taste and insure perfect enunciation and articulation. The teeth absolutely cannot be discerned from natural teeth. These teeth because of the direct bite have three times the biting strength of ordinary plates. Are you now wearing artificial teeth? If so we strongly advise you to call and investigate this new plate.

Eve to the Rescue

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Eve had waited long and patiently for Teddy to keep his appointment in the hotel lounge. It was apparent, however, since it was a full half-hour past the time of meeting, that the business engagement had prevented him from coming.

Eve was thoroughly disappointed. She was looking even more adorable than usual in her new Poiret twill that was distinctly bizarre in silhouette, yet curiously suggestive of extreme elegance.

Also Eve felt in a most chatty mood and wanted to dance more than she had longed to for many months. Altogether she was feeling abused and more than a little lonesome.

At least she had been lonesome until she had found intense interest in a young officer who she considered had been abominably treated in the tea lounge.

Eve had watched him go in and seat himself at a small table among the dancers, only to be told by a waiter that he could not have tea there unless accompanied by a lady.

She had watched his thoroughly astonished gaze at the waiter and his well-bred and immediate succumbing to the law of the hotel. Eve felt sorry for the young officer; he so obviously wanted his afternoon tea.

"British" marked him all over—his easy carriage, the well-worn uniform, the peculiar air of detachment from his surroundings.

In another instant Eve had recognized him as the famous war correspondent whose every word she had read with an interest bordering on fascination. And now his personality was claiming her in a far more amazing manner. One of the most unhoped-for longings of her life had been a desire to meet John Travers, and now here he was before her very eyes and in most distressing need of feminine companionship.

He was sauntering slowly from the lounge, and in a moment would pass near enough for Eve to touch his khaki shoulder.

Eve had never before made up her mind to a most unconventional act so quickly. Her heart had no time to treble its beat before she approached the famous officer. Her smile was of the truly Eve variety.

"Oh, Mr. Travers," she called softly, "it is perfectly scandalous of me to ask you, but I would love to be the lady you require in order to have a cup in the lounge."

Eve was a trifle breathless by the time Travers' eyes had turned upon her in wholly delightful surprise. A brilliant flush, too, swept defiantly into her cheeks.

Altogether Eve was a lovely applicant for favor.

"How jolly of you," Travers said quickly. His acceptance of her was so swift and natural that even the most eagle-eyed Mrs. Grundy would have failed to see the delightful unconventionality of it. He turned then and they went toward a cozy table that boasted a suggestion of seclusion in the big room.

Eve was smiling radiantly now. She tried to tell herself that she had actually approached a strange man and offered her company to him, but somehow the facts slipped away from her mind and they chatted with a naturalness born of the fact that the great adventure had claimed them.

"You have been here only a few days," Eve was saying as she daintily poured the tea, "and if anyone had told me that I would have the pleasure of offering you a cup of tea like this"—Eve suited the action to words—"I could not have believed him."

The sincerity of Eve had quickly stamped itself on Travers' brain. That keen, sensitive mind of his was not likely to err in its impressions of human beings.

He would have been grateful to anyone who had been good enough to tide him over the lonely hour that threatened him, but that the particular one should have velvety eyes and scarlet lips as two of a full dozen charms was a tremendous bit of luck.

Travers took advantage of his good fortune and held Eve's entire interest, giving her a few of the vivid sensations that New York's streets had offered him.

"I am coming to hear you lecture," she confided to him, "but I will treasure what you have told me here far more than anything you tell the whole audience."

John Travers had a queer un-British desire to tell Eve that he felt as if some day there might be more things for her ear alone. Instead he smiled his whimsical smile straight into her eyes.

"You see," she continued, while the effect of his smile traveled down to her heart, "we ordinary people appreciate more than you have any idea of the mere presence of you great people. To see you personally, or even just to touch you in a passing crowd—that in itself creates a tremendous elation in us."

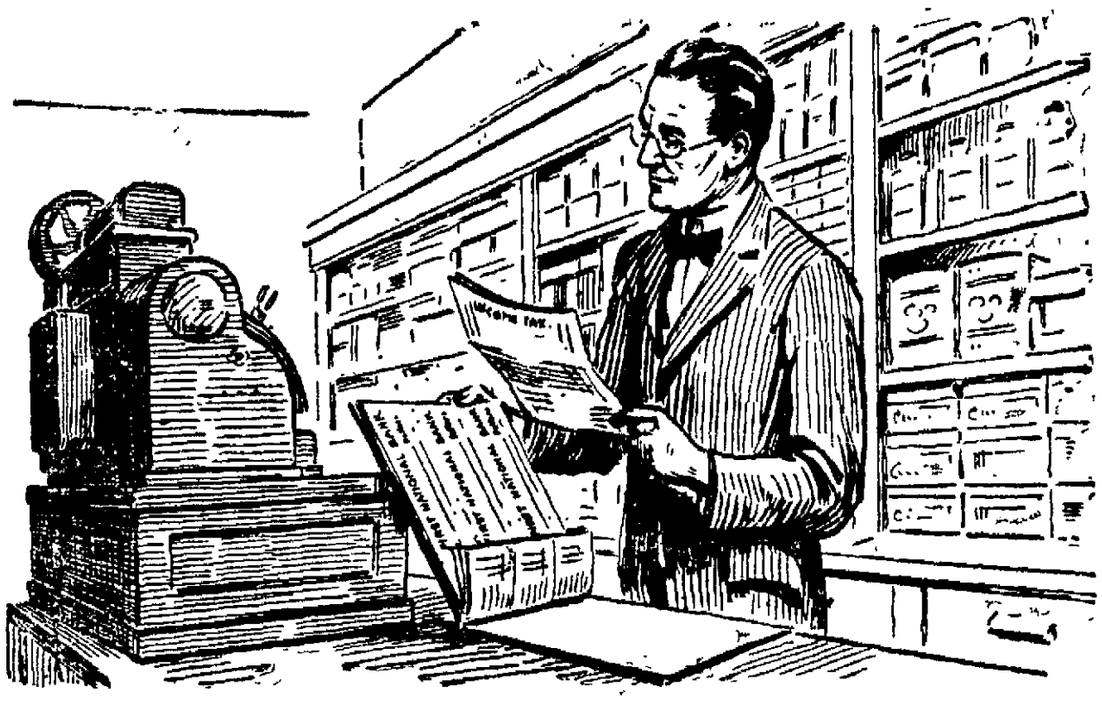
Travers again laughed.

"You Americans have the most delightful ability to express the delicate, agreeable thoughts that come into your heads. We Britishers are hopeless, quite hopeless in the niceties of conversation."

He looked seriously at Eve, then continued: "Now if I were to express to you the charming, whimsical picture that your coming to me as you did has flung on my mind I would fail. Fancy telling you how more than happy I am that you are having tea with me—a perfect stranger in America."

It was Eve now who laughed.

There's no reason why a merchant should worry about his income tax report or his store records



THE average storekeeper who uses a bank check book and an up-to-date National Cash Register can get the figures which tell him how his business stands every day, and the figures he needs for his income tax report once a year.

From his check book and bills:

He can get the cost of running his store, cost of merchandise bought, and a record of payments made.

From his National Cash Register:

He can get a record of his store transactions:

① Cash Sales ③ Received on Account
② Charge Sales ④ Petty Cash Paid Out

These store transactions are the basis of his gross income. They total sixty per cent to ninety per cent of the details occupying his time and clerical labor.

They must be made rapidly during the rush of selling.

They are hard to get, hard to keep, impossible to verify, and expensive to record unless he uses a modern National Cash Register.

National Cash Register figures are the foundation for accounting systems in stores all over the world. A post card or phone call will bring you full information about the way a modern N. C. R. System will keep your store records by machinery.

...ough." She touched him the very first of her veiled glances. Her eyes had been openly frank, her manner dummy and even boyish. Now the woman had come forward to challenge the man.

Travers sensed the change, but stood his ground even as the British army was wont to stand its ground though the enemy outnumbered it by many thousands of men.

Eve looked deep and long into the young correspondent's eyes as if she would imprint therein some kind of memory of herself. She felt in part quite inadequate to enter any arena when John Travers was already there. A soft, gentle sigh escaped her lips.

"Do you fancy a dance?" Travers asked her suddenly. "It's many a day since I did any dancing, but I fancy we can draw through."

"I am sure we can." Eve laughed and rose.

A moment later they were among the dancers, but it was all a dream to Eve. She could not realize that John Travers' arm was in reality touching the back of her Poiret costume and that her own hand lay in his. It must be a dream, and she would wake to find that she did not even know him.

However, Travers made it more than apparent that he was actually there.

He kept up a light conversation at a quite alarming extent for him. It was almost as if he were trying to erase for a few wonderful moments the tragic scenes that had crowded themselves before his tired brain during four long years of war. He was fighting the awful reality of war as he had seen it, but, too, the British in him was fighting to remain sensible.

There was something very, very compelling in the charming Eve, and

...the mercy of the first attractive girl with whom he had danced in four years. Yet there was no denying the tremor that her hand was sending up his arm nor the delightful contentment her presence near him was producing.

"Are you going to be in our country very long?" he found Eve to be asking.

Travers swiftly calculated the number of weeks his lectures would take him, and to that he added a week or so for the advancement of his courtship of Eve. He made up his mind that the latter would not take over long if he had all the says, and answered Eve when it was all thought out.

"There are one or two things I must attend to when my lectures are finished. You American girls are tremendously clever at giving strangers the right of way in New York—so perhaps I may call on you to help me decide my course. If you assist, I will be back in England before three months have passed."

Eve pondered for a long time on Travers' words and found them food for reflection—quite, quite romantic reflections.

"I have so enjoyed assisting you this afternoon that I am positive when you ask a great favor I will be there to help you," she said. Her voice was wonderfully soft and Travers sensed a warmth as well in its depths.

At least he knew he would not return to England without Eve somewhere on the steamer, and she would be there not as Eve—single.

How Bird Flights Are Observed.

In spite of their difficult and exacting task, a few airmen have found opportunity to observe and record the height at which various migrating birds are accustomed to fly. Thus from French soldiers of the air it is learned that swallows have been observed to maintain an average altitude of 700 yards, and wild ducks one of 1,500 yards, and that green plovers have been seen at a height of 2,150 yards. Incidentally it may be mentioned that the ducks were moving at a speed of 65¼ miles an hour when flying upward and 69 miles an hour when flying horizontally. Another aviator when flying at 2,500 feet saw swallows high above him. And another, who made his observations at a height of 6,000 feet during a heavy bombardment, with antiaircraft shells bursting all about him, says that he saw 200 golden plovers, perhaps driven higher than usual by the fact that the vicinity was an unpleasant belt to cross.

For Salesmen.

No man is ever criticized for having pleasant, gentle manners; and you don't have to be a six-foot Adonis to have this faculty, either.

No man ever lost anything by being clean and spruce—quick and spare. If you are slovenly about your person, you usually become just so about your business, and buyers know it.

Don't approach a gentleman as if you had known him all your life. Don't stick out one hand, and, with the other, shove out a cigar. Be modest and retiring. Speak slowly and forcefully, and when you speak, say something! Gab is excess baggage.

Work! Here is the rock that about ninety out of a hundred split on. Work! Did you ever hear a man say, "Jim Jones is a good fellow and a worker?" More often you hear, "Jim's just a good fellow."—New Success Magazine.

Scotland's Water Power.

It is estimated that 1,000,000 horse power could be obtained from Scotland's waterfalls.

New Theory as to Cancer.

A well-known medical authority has advanced the theory that false teeth are often the cause of cancer. Where a set of teeth fits imperfectly, the constant abrasion on the gums causes, at first, the development of an area of congested tissue. In time this formation degenerates into an ulcerated state, which, although innocent enough in the beginning, may soon exhibit a rapid malignant transformation. The changes from a healthy structure of the gums to that of cancer moves on so insidiously in the early stages that frequently the condition, when recognized, is difficult to combat.

Few See World at Its Best.

It is indeed marvelous to consider how few are the people who get up early in the morning. If we leave out the milkmen and the farmer, we might say that nobody knows it is daytime until the sun has risen far on its course. Every hour of all the 24 has a charm of its own. Night is very beautiful and so is noon time. But, there can be no doubt at all that the world is more beautiful at the dawn of day than at any other time.—Los Angeles Times.

Early American Post Offices.

In 1775 the first post offices in Maine were established at Kennebunk, Falmouth and Bath. The mails were carried by carriers on foot or on horseback and the average week's mail did not amount to five letters at each office. The rates were high, 6¼, 12½, 18¾, 25 and 37½ cents, according to the distance the letter had to be carried, and double the rate when the letter was of more than one sheet of paper.

What living person can stand up and say unflinchingly that he or she is not haunted by some gripping fear?—a fear that grows with every minute of the day and follows everywhere like a black shadow, dimming the sunshine of life—a fear that makes every minute of the night one of frozen terror—a fear that drenches with cold perspiration and numbs all sense of reason?

What was the FEAR that made Helen Winthrop flee from the altar at the crucial moment—away from the man she loved most?

What UNSHACKLED her fear and led her back to her lover and eternal happiness

KEARNEY'S BODY FOUND SUNDAY

Missing Trackwalker of Trolley Road Was Drowned in Hudson River—Body Washed Up on Beach at Port Ewen.

The mystery of the disappearance of Michael Kearney from his home, No. 356 Broadway, last Wednesday, was solved Sunday morning by the finding of his body washed up on the beach at Port Ewen. The missing man had last been seen alive on the Hudson river Day Line pier at Kingston Point Park, and, it is evident that he fell into the Hudson river the same day that he wandered away from home.

The body was found between 8 and 9 o'clock Sunday morning by Herbert DuBois of Port Ewen, lying on the beach near the Schoonmaker ice house. Coroner E. A. Kelly was notified and he had Dr. G. W. Ross of Port Ewen make an examination of the body. The body had been in the water several days and decomposition had set in to such an extent that the identity could not be ascertained until Edward Moran, a son-in-law of the dead man, had made an examination. He identified the body by means of the clothing and the contents of the pockets, as well as the stature of the man.

The body was turned over to Undertaker R. H. McCutcheon, and the funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock from the late residence and at 9:30 o'clock from St. Mary's Church. Interment will be made in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mr. Kearney is survived by his wife and two daughters. Mrs. Edward Moran and Miss Mary Kearney, both of this city. For the past 35 years he had been in the employ of the Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company as trackwalker, greasing the curves and switches of the trolley line. He was a man who was faithful to his duties, and of genial character. He had been in poor health for the past few weeks, and unable to perform his duties with the trolley road.

FLAG DAY AT ELKS' CLUBHOUSE

Americanism Keynote of Program Participated in by Senator Walton, Roscoe Irwin, W. H. TenBroeck and Miss Jacus.

The 142d anniversary of the American flag was most fittingly observed Sunday afternoon at the Elks' Club, Fair street, by the members of Kingston Lodge, No. 550 there being a large attendance. Most interesting exercises were held. The rooms were profusely decorated with flags and bunting. The introductory and altar services were conducted by the officers of the lodge.

The address by Roscoe Irwin, former mayor of this city, and internal revenue collector of this district, was an able one, he counseling vigorous Americanism. Hon. Charles W. Walton, read the flag record, and William H. TenBroeck, of the lodge, most eloquently gave the tribute to the flag. The session opened by the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner," by an orchestra, Brother George E. Muller being the conductor. After the introductory exercises, prayer was delivered by Brother Dennis Cavanaugh, of Rochester, N. Y., who acted as chaplain. Miss Jacus sang charmingly a solo, preceding the flag record. During the exercises the orchestra rendered other selections and Arthur Rifenbary sang a solo. The program of exercises was as follows:

Senile Marriages.

Some bygone lawmakers would have been in sympathy with the Brooklyn millionaire who maintains that at 86 he was too old to be legally married. In Rome, under the Emperor Augustus, a law was passed forbidding men to marry when they were over 60, and women when they were over 50. Peter the Great, also disapproved of senile marriage, and enacted that no marriage age contract should hold good if either of the contracting parties was over 80 at the time it was entered upon.

Will be Located on Haviland Farm at Highland and Boys Will Earn Way by Picking Fruits—The Program.

Kingston's boys are going to help in the gathering of the large crop of fruit in Ulster county. There is a great demand for fruit pickers and unless the demand is supplied, much fruit will go to waste. Each day the past week applications have been received to go to a fruit picking camp conducted by the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. This camp is to be a combination of work and recreation and is to be located on the farm of L. G. Haviland at Highland, N. Y. The camp will begin Monday, June 23, the boys leaving on the 7:15 morning train. All baggage should be at the Y. M. C. A. not later than Wednesday night of this week, in order that it may be taken early Thursday morning and camp set up. An advance party will leave at this time to get camp ready. Boys who desire to attend camp and have not handed in their applications may do so before Thursday. The following programs have been arranged by camp directors S. P. Hines and N. A. Dillinger. The boys will earn their way by picking currants and the thrifty ones can come home with money in their pockets.

Renews Carbon Paper.

An additional period of usefulness may be secured from a partially used sheet of carbon or transfer paper by simply holding it over an open flame such as a lamp, candle or match, with the carbon side down. The wax substances of the unused parts will melt and run into the thinner sections of the parts which are worn out.

HERE AND THERE ABOUT THE TOWN

The Stroller Hears It Takes All Kinds Of Folks To Populate the Earth, But the Meanest Thief In Ulster County Has Just Been Located.

"There goes the meanest man in town," said the customer suddenly as he pointed out of the barber shop window to a man ambling by.

"How do you make that out?" asked the busy barber, as he industriously worked away with soap and rag cleaning the cigar case.

"Why he is so mean," explained the customer, "that rather than spend a nickel for some tobacco he will sit down near a man who is smoking, and even ask him to blow the smoke in his direction."

"It would seem to me," replied the barber, with a smile, "that he hardly comes under the definition of a mean man. To my mind he is more stingy than mean."

"Well, perhaps you are right," conceded the customer.

"There is no doubt that it takes all kinds of folks to populate the globe," continued the barber, "for if we were all alike in looks, thoughts and deeds how darn monotonous and tiresome this old world would be."

"There is a big difference between a stingy man and a mean person," added the barber, "which reminds me of an incident related this morning by a man in getting his hair trimmed."

"Shoot it along," urged the customer, leaning back comfortably in his chair.

"He came from around the Ashokan reservoir section," complied the barber, "and there is a beautiful little cemetery up there in which repose the bones of many of the pioneers who built up that country long before New York city razed what they had builded."

"Last summer this cemetery was visited by a mystery. Those visiting the graves of loved ones would find that the potted flowers they had placed there were missing. This season the same condition of affairs existed.

"So many graves were plundered of potted plants that finally steps were taken and a watch set. They found that a person residing several miles away from the cemetery would drive up and walking through pick out the best looking potted plants and cart them away home.

"On threat of arrest the stolen plants were returned to the cemetery. Now, talking about mean people, to my mind stealing flowers from the graves is about the meanest theft on record.

"And," concluded the barber, "that was a case of the meanest thief in Ulster county being caught."

AUTO 'BUS WRECK AT MELLENVILLE

One Dead and Score Injured As Big Car Plying Between Hudson and Philmont Goes Over Embankment.

William Best, seven years old, of Philmont, is dead, six other persons were seriously injured and about fifteen were cut and bruised when an auto bus operating between Hudson and Philmont plunged over a ten foot embankment along the state road at Mellenville Saturday, rolled twice over and finally rested at the bottom, pinning many of its occupants underneath.

The casualties are:

William Best, Philmont, died at his home from a broken rib piercing his lungs.

Mrs. Minnie Silvernail, Philmont, fractured ribs and internal injuries; in Hudson City Hospital.

Mrs. May Allen, Philmont, fractured pelvis and internal injuries; in Hudson City Hospital.

Mrs. Vactor Smith, Mellenville, one earn torn off, head and shoulders cut and bruised; taken to her home.

Mrs. Frank Best, Philmont, mother of the dead boy, spine injured; taken home.

Frank Best, Philmont, father of the dead boy, leg sprained, bruised about body; taken home.

Mrs. Herbert Belknap, Philmont, sprained ankle and other injuries; taken home.

Ten or fifteen others were cut and bruised.

It is said there were twenty of twenty-five passengers on the bus which is operated by Luther Shute of Hudson and was driven by Augustus Obermeyer, Jr., of Hudson.

The accident took place at about 5 o'clock in the afternoon in the village of Mellenville, just after the bus had passed over the Boston and Albany tracks and was descending the slight grade into the village. The big car left the road at the left and before anyone could jump, had plunged down the ten foot embankment and rolled twice over.

The cries of the injured were heard by many in the village and all the physicians of Philmont and several from Hudson were summoned. The injured were taken to their homes or the hospital in automobiles, many of which gathered in a short time.

The occupants of the bus were found in a pile at the foot of the embankment, struggling to release themselves, some were pinned under the bus. With the aid of scores of men who gathered almost at once, the big car was righted and the injured where placed in the care of the physicians.

William Best was first taken to his home and later to the hospital where it was found his condition was so serious he could live only a short time and he was then taken back to his home. He died later in the night.

Mrs. Silvernail and Mrs. Allen were taken to the hospital where they remain in critical condition.

While the cause of the accident has not been determined, it is thought a pin dropped from the steering gear, making the car unmanageable. Coroner Hudson is investigating and will conduct an inquest this week.

The bus was one of the oldest in the Philmont-Hudson service and had been in operation about seven years. This is said to be the first accident on the route.

The Saturday traffic is heavy between the two places as many Philmont and Mellenville folk come into Hudson to do their shopping.

SEE WIRE STRIKE NEARER END

As Result of Burleson Recognition of Electrical Workers Which Averted Telephone Strike in Sympathy With Telegraphers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 16.—Settlement of the general strike of telegraphers is believed nearer today as the result of the action of Postmaster General Burleson in granting to the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers the right of collective bargaining recognition of their union and adjustment of the wage scale. Officials of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union contend that Burleson's action in the case of the electrical workers, establishes a basis which also must be recognized in considering the demands of the telegraphers.

The announcement by Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, at Atlantic City that Burleson had promised to give orders for conferences between officials of the telegraph companies and representatives of the union also is regarded as another step towards early adjustment of the situation.

Officials here of the union are without details of the plan announced by Morrison, but were hopeful that it would result in a settlement of the strike.

At a mass meeting of strikers here, it was voted to send a cablegram to President Wilson setting forth their side of the controversy and appealing to him to intervene for an equitable adjustment of the dispute.

A complete tieup of the telegraph and telephone systems of the country was averted by the action of the postmaster general in granting the demands of the electrical workers. This action resulted in heads of the brotherhood rescinding general strike orders which would have become effective today.

Member of Committee Who Conferred With Burleson Says Order Regarding Electrical Workers Includes All Employes Under Control of Postal Department.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 16.—Postmaster General Burleson's order granting the right of collective bargaining to the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers applies also to all men under the control of the post office department, including telegraphers and post office employes, according to word received by President S. J. Konenkamp, of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union today.

The information to Konenkamp came from Atlantic City where a report to the convention of the American Federation of Labor by P. H. McCarthy of San Francisco, stated the order was applicable to all men in the postal department. McCarthy was a member of the committee sent by the American Federation of Labor to confer with the postmaster general.

"This is the biggest victory we've won," said President Konenkamp. "I hope the matter will be cleaned up by the end of the week. The next move, after we have definite word that Mr. Burleson's order includes telegraphers, would be for him to order the companies to take back the men discriminated against."

Konenkamp said he believed there is a possibility of the ending of the strike by Wednesday.

RENEW WAR SAVINGS DRIVE

City Chairman DeWitt In Letter To County Leader Brinnier Says Time Is Ripe For Those Who Desire To Learn or Continue Thrift To Come Forward.

Kingston, N. Y. June 16, 1919.

To the People of the City of Kingston and Ulster county.—I received the following communication from William C. DeWitt, City Chairman of the W. S. S.

Hon. William D. Brinnier,
County Chairman W. S. S. organization,
Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—As you know we have not actively pushed the sale of War Savings Stamps during the recent successful Liberty Victory Loan campaign or since. Our loyal W. S. S. captains and workers managed the house-to-house canvass in the city for the loan and many of our county members covered their districts in the country. All deserved a rest.

Now it is imperative that we hold our W. S. S. drive for cash sales and pledges.

The government loan organization is expectantly watching the result of our proposed W. S. S. drive in Ulster county. Governor Strong has sent prizes to you for distribution among the most successful teams. The time is ripe to begin. The captains, lieutenants and aides are rested and willing. We suggest that you announce a campaign for one month beginning June 25, and extending to July 25. The government has sent us 50,000 pledge cards and all arrangements will be completed before that period, if it is agreeable to you.

Respectfully,
WILLIAM C. DE WITT,
City Chairman W. S. S.

I fully realize and appreciate the sentiments expressed therein by him and I know the good people of this city and county are realizing more and more every day that thrift and savings mean much to them and their families. The United States government is endeavoring to inculcate thrift in the minds of all its citizens and there is no better way to do it than by the sale of war savings stamps which is an obligation of the government paying a good rate of interest and the most secure investment which can possibly be made by anyone. By owning war savings stamps, the government is your debtor. You become interested more and more in the government by reason of having invested in its obligations. It makes better citizens where they have a financial interest in the government under which they live. A man, woman or child who goes through life without any desire to accumulate something for a rainy day is not a success in life. The people who save some portion of their earnings by their thrift is evidence that they have some interest in life, other than spending all they can get.

The government is giving you a plan by which you may become thrifty and it is by loaning to it your money and taking the obligation of the government for the same in the way of War Savings Stamps. Is it not your duty to do your share and buy more stamps? The city of Kingston and Ulster county should surely do their part as they have always done before and keep up their quota of the W. S. S. as well as other campaigns. Some people think the government has been extravagant in their expenditures. There may be some truth in this but in times of great emergencies, men are apt to act on the moment without great consideration, in order to accomplish the end before them. By careful management of the financial affairs of the country, the indebtedness will soon be paid and this government will be the richest and best on the face of God's footstool. By purchasing War Savings Stamps is evidence of your confidence in the United States government.

Respectfully,
WILLIAM D. BRINNIER,
County Chairman, W. S. S.

SYNOD HERE FOR THIRD TIME

Church of The Redeemer Again Entertains New York and New England Synod This Week—A History of the Church.

The Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer of this city is one of the most prominent churches in the New York and New England Synod which will hold its eighteenth annual convention here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Twice before this church has entertained the synod; the first in 1903 and the second time in 1913. It has the distinction and honor of having had one of its members of the official board of the synod ever since the synod was organized. The Rev. W. F. Bachet, the first pastor of the church, was the first president of the synod and held that office for two terms or six years. The Rev. Howard E. Snyder, the second pastor of the church, was secretary of the synod for two years, and Fred J. Walter, has been the synodical treasurer for the past ten years.

The Church of the Redeemer was organized January 24, 1897, at a meeting over which John Hiltebrent acted as chairman and Fred J. Walter, secretary. On February 14, the constitution was adopted and on the 28th of the same month the Rev. W. F. Bacher was called as the first pastor. The call was accepted to take effect June 1. Meanwhile services were held in Liscomb's Opera House, now the Orpheum Theater, supplies being secured from the seminary at Philadelphia. On March 26 the house at the corner of Wurts and Rogers streets was purchased at a cost of $6,000. The large house was remodeled into a church and parsonage at a cost of about $2,000. The first service was held in the new quarters on June 13, 1897. Rev. Bacher was installed by the Rev. F. A. Kahler, D. D., then president of the English Conference of the New York Ministerium. The church was dedicated at the same service by the Rev. J. A. Kuhlemann, D. D., of Atlantic City, N. J.

On March 19, 1908, Rev. Bacher resigned to accept a charge in St. Paul, Minn. He was succeeded by the Rev. Howard E. Snyder of Wildwood-by the Sea, N. J. During Rev. Bacher's pastorate a fund was started for the erection of a new church building. This fund grew by leaps and bounds, reaching such a size that at the annual meeting of the congregation on January 12, 1911 a committee was appointed to have plans and specifications prepared for a new building. The plans were prepared and adopted October 5, 1911. The contract was let in April 1912. The corner stone was laid September 8, 1912 and the following May the building was dedicated. The congregation purchased the Winters property adjoining the church grounds in December 1909 as a parsonage.

In April, 1916, Rev. Snyder presented his resignation to become pastor of a church at Madison, Wisconsin. He was succeeded by the Rev. P. S. Baringer of Philadelphia who is pastor of the church at the present time.

IN POLICE COURT.

Traffic Violators and Fighters at Kingston Point Park.

Saturday evening John Withouski, Frank Gardeski and John Koslowski got into a fight at Kingston Point Park and were placed under arrest by Superintendent John Q. Smith of the park. Sunday morning the three young men, ranging in age from 19 to 17 years, were arraigned before Judge Schirick and fined $5 each, which they paid.

Ross McKim was arrested by Officer Fout for running his auto on the wrong side of the street and knocking down an iron cop. He paid a $2 fine, and also for the damage to the standard.

Ralph R. Whitehead of Woodstock, who was arrested last week for speeding 26 miles an hour, was unable to be in court this morning, as he had been called to Philadelphia, where his son was to undergo an operation. He was represented by Philip Elting, who entered a plea of guilty. As it was the first time Mr. Whitehead had ever been arrested he was fined $5, which his attorney paid.

DECKER IS A DESERTER

From the U. S. Navy—He Has Deserted Twice—Caught Sunday.

Chester Decker, a deserter from the navy, was caught at East Kingston Sunday by Sergeant Phinney, and this morning the sergeant took Decker to the Brooklyn navy yard, where he turned him over to the naval authorities. This is the second time that Decker deserted from the navy. Last December he deserted and was caught by Officer Shader, who received the $50 reward offered. Sergeant Phinney will also receive a $50 reward.
